BlackBook Sold to Founder

By Chris O'Shea on June 11, 2013 9:36 AM

BlackBook magazine is going back home. According to the New York Observer, Vibe Holdings has sold the magazine back to Evanly Schindler, who found the publication all the way back in 1996.

The magazine's other owner is Jon Bond, who currently serves as "chief tomorrowist" (yes, we're serious) for Tomorro LLC, a marketing company. Despite that cool title, Bond is more well known as the founder of Kirshenbaum Bond & Partners.

The sale involved several other investors, including Steve Zacks, Aaron Hicklin and Bill
